

Individual Study Areas—Elementary School

An individual study area in your school's media center, common area or classroom should provide students with a quiet place to read, work on assignments or study. Individual tabletops accommodate testing, textbooks or devices. Spacious work areas and comfortable seating keep students relaxed through long study sessions.

Requirements for an Individual Study Area

For students, the ideal individual study area should be located in a quiet area where they won't be interrupted. Individual tabletops and power-enabled furnishings create convenient locations for students to focus on their work with minimal distractions. Work surfaces should be spacious enough to allow students to spread out books and papers, and seating should be comfortable enough for extended use.

For teachers, the individual study space should be located away from the main activity area in the media center, common area or classroom. It should be comprised of several study spaces and comfortable seating to ensure students are comfortable using the space for long periods of time.

For administrators, the individual study area will be furnished in a way that meets the goal for the space. All products must be available and delivered on time. Installations must be quick and efficient.

Individual Study Area Solutions from School Outfitters

School Outfitters' research and development team designed an individual study area that caters to the needs of students and teachers alike. Our carefully selected furnishings accommodate students that need a quiet place to study, read or work on assignments. Furnishings for personal study, research, and informal gatherings make it simple to create a great individual study area.

Furnishing for personal study give students small individual areas to read or to work on assignments. Furnishings in this area include:

- Individual tabletops
- Mobile seating

Individual tabletops provide personal spaces for students to focus on their reading or other assignments.

Mobile seating allows students to customize the personal space, so they can best concentrate on their reading or activities.

Furnishings for research let students spread out more items, so they can easily cross-reference or engage in individual project work.

- Spacious tabletops
- Mobile seating
- Mobile shelving units

Spacious tabletops give students room to keep reference material or to arrange items for project work.

Mobile seating lets students arrange themselves to accomplish the goals of the project or study session.

Mobile shelving units keep research materials and other supplies organized. Rolling casters make it easy to move the unit out of the way when needed.

Furnishings for informal gatherings give small students groups an inviting place to read, study or plan projects.

- Soft seating
- Power-enabled furnishings

Soft seating keeps student comfortable and relaxed as they work on assignments or read a book.

Power-enabled furnishings give students a place to charge their devices.
